Blasphemy: dishonoring God

My children irreverence is rampant in the world. There is no fear of the Lord even in my own house. Fear in this instance does not mean to be afraid of no; it means reverence, respect, honor. I am not honored in the world even some in my own house dishonor me. They equate me to the dead gods of this world. It is shameful but the world is fascinated by Satan and even honors him in their speech, their actions and in the movies that are frequently produced nowadays. I am looked upon as a cockroach, an insect to be stomped on. My name is used as a curse word; I am constantly mocked in magazines, on T.V., in cartoons. It is a shame that I am more respected in the other religions yet dishonored by those to whom Christianity was first preached. This nation, America was established on Christian principles and by covenant to me, Jesus, yet it is in this very nation that I am greatly dishonored, made a laughing stock, spat on and stepped on. Children do you really think you will get away with your irreverence? You mock that which you do not know for even Satan, his angels and his demons dare not mock me to my face. They hear my name mentioned and they tremble and bow for they know who I am but those whom I created in my own image and likeness have reduced me to a byword. Beware children did I not say that you will give account of every word that you uttered? Therefore repent that your sins may be blotted out by my blood and remembered no more. I will forgive all who repent of their irreverence towards me. I will not remember your sin anymore; I will cast it into the sea. My children it is your duty to uphold the honor of my name. Do not join in the irreverence of ignorant ones; instead rebuke them in love that you may lead them to repentance and not to wrath. I seek to forgive and save all but not all will repent and not all will follow me. I know and understand the nature of men but I will not force them to follow me. Salvation is a choice, repentance is a choice, to live holy is a choice. All must choose to either follow the light or remain in darkness. It is time my children for you to be zealous for my name and for my house. Uphold the honor of my name and my righteousness. Do not allow others to blaspheme me in your presence and you remain silent. Open your mouth in love and correction not in anger and pride. Many do not understand the power their words hold. Reject all forms of blasphemy whether it is in the form of curse words, pictures, cartoons, songs, poems. Whatever form the blasphemy takes reject it and seek to bring understanding and correction but only through a heart full of my love. If you are angry be quiet for your wrath may cause the irreverent ones to walk even farther away from me. Instead be quiet, calm down and when your peace has returned to you and your heart is full of compassion for the lost then go back and in quietness of spirit and firmness of voice rebuke in my love. Your words will be as seeds planted in a desperately desolate land. I will water the seed you have planted and in due season there will be increase in the form of much fruit. Take heed my children make sure you do not participate in coarse jesting. You are my children let your speech and actions be holy and in so doing honor my name among the irreverent and the unsaved. Heed my words children, heed them well.
